

SAV

Study is like the heav'n's glorious sun,
That will not be deep search'd with fancy looks;
Small have continual plodders ever won,
Save safe authority from others' books.
And if thou hast the mettle of a king,
Being wrong'd as we are by this peevish town,
Turn thou the mouth of thy artillery,
As we will ours against these fancy walls. Shakef. K. John.
Power's first pedigree from force derives,
And calls to mind the old prerogatives
Of free-born man; and with a fancy eye
Searches the heart and soul of majesty. Denham's Sophy.
I lose my patience, when with fancy pride
By untun'd ears I hear his numbers try'd.
No fancy citizen shall dare
To strike a soldier, nor, when struck, resent
The wrong. Dryden's Juvenal.
Homer, to express a man both timorous and fancy, makes use of a kind of point, namely, that he had the eyes of a dog, but the heart of a deer. Addison's Spectator.
To SAVE. v. a. [favor, faulter, French; salvo, Latin.]
1. To preserve from danger or destruction.
Let me die ere men can say God save the queen. Shakef.
One shall cry, yet cannot he answer, nor save him out of his trouble. Jf. xlv. 7.
A wondrous ark,
To save himself and household from amidst
A world devote to universal wreck. Milton.
We may be confident whatever he does is intended for our good, and whatever we interpret otherwise we can get nothing by repining, nor save any thing by resisting. Temple.
The circling streams, once thought but pools of blood,
From dark oblivion Harvey's name shall save. Dryden.
2. To preserve finally from eternal death.
Whatsoever we read in Scripture concerning the endless love and saving mercy which God sheweth towards his church, the only proper subject thereof is this church. Hooker.
There are some that will be saved, and some that will be damned. Shakepeare.
We are not of them who draw back unto perdition; but of them that believe, to the saving of the soul. Heb. x. 39.
His merits save them. Milton.
He who seareth God, and worketh righteousness, and per-severes in the faith and duties of our religion, shall certainly be saved. Rogers.
3. Not to spend; to hinder from being spent.
With your cost you terminate the cause,
And save the expense of long litigious laws,
Where suits are traver's'd, and so little won,
That he who conquers is but last undone. Dryden.
4. To reserve or lay by.
He shall not feel quietness, he shall not save of that which he desired. Job xx. 20.
5. To spare; to excuse.
Will you not speak to save a lady's blush? Dryden.
Our author saves me the comparison with tragedy. Dryd.
These finews are not so much unstrung,
To fail me when my master should be serv'd;
And when they are, then will I steal to death,
Silent and unobser'd, to save his tears. Dryd. Don Sebast.
6. To falve; to reconcile.
How build, unbuild, contrive
To save appearances; how gird the sphere
With centrick and eccentric. Milton's Parad. Lost.
7. To take or embrace opportunely, so as not to lose.
The same persons, who were chief confidants to Cromwell, foreseeing a restoration, seized the castles in Ireland, just saving the tide, and putting in a flock of merit sufficient. Swift.
To SAVE. v. n. To be cheap.
Brass ordnance saveth in the quantity of the material, and in the charge of mounting and carriage. Bacon's Phys. Rem.
SAVE. adv. [This word, adverbially used, is, like except, originally the imperative of the verb.] Except; not including.
But being all defeated, save a few, Fa. 24.
Rather than fly, or be captiv'd, herself she flew.
All the conspirators, save only he, Shakef.
Did that they did in envy of great Cæsar.
He never put down a near servant, save only Stanley, the lord chamberlain. Bacon's Henry VII.
How have I then with whom to hold converse,
Save with the creatures which I made? Milton.
SA'VEALL. n. f. [save and all.] A small pan inserted into a candlestick to save the ends of candles.
SA'VEY. n. f. [from save.]
1. Preserver; rescuer.
They were manifoldly acknowledged the saviors of that country. Stidny.
2. One who escapes loss, though without gain.
Laws of arms permit each injur'd man
To make himself a saver where he can.
Who dares affirm this is no pious age,
When charity begins to tread the flage? Dryden.

SAV

When actors, who at best are hardly saviors,
Will give a night of benefit to weavers? Swift.
3. A good husband.
4. One who lays up and grows rich.
By nature far from profusion, and yet a greater spender than a saver; for though he had such means to accumulate, yet his garifons and his feastings soaked his exchequer. Wotton.
SA'VIN. n. f. [fabina, Latin; savor, sabin, Fr.] A tree.
It hath compact, rigid, and prickly ever-green leaves: the fruit is small, spherical, and warted; and the whole plant has a very rank strong smell. The species are three, and commonly cultivated for medicinal use. Miller.
SA'VING. adj. [from save.]
1. Frugal; parsimonious; not lavish.
She loved money; for she was saving, and applied her fortune to pay John's clamorous debts. Arbutn. Hist. of J. Bull.
Be saving of your candle. Swift.
2. Not turning to loss, though not gainful.
Silvio, finding his application unsuccessful, was resolved to make a saving bargain; and since he could not get the widow's estate, to recover what he had laid out of his own. Addison.
SA'VING. adv. [This is nothing more than a participle of the verb save adverbially used.] With exception in favour of.
All this world's glory seemeth vain,
And all their shows but shadows, saving the. Spenser.
Such laws cannot be abrogated, saving only by whom they were made; because the intent of them being known unto none but the author, he alone can judge how long it is requisite they should endure. Hooker.
Saving the reverence due to so great a man, I doubt not but they did all creep out of their holes. Ray on the Creation.
SA'VING. n. f. [from save.]
1. Escape of expense; somewhat preserved from being spent.
It is a great saving in all such lights, if they can be made as fair and right as others, and yet last longer.
By reducing interest to four per cent. there was a considerable saving to the nation; but this year they give six. Addison.
2. Exception in favour.
Content not with those that are too strong for us, but still with a saving to honesty; for integrity must be supported against all violence. L'Estrange.
SA'VINGLY. adv. [from saving.] With parcimony.
SA'VINGNESS. n. f. [from saving.]
1. Parcimony; frugality.
2. Tendency to promote eternal salvation.
SA'VIOUR. n. f. [saviour, Latin.] Redeemer; he that has saved mankind from eternal death.
So judg'd he man, both judge and Saviour sent. Milton.
However consonant to reason his precepts appeared, nothing could have tempted men to acknowledge him as their God and Saviour, but their being firmly persuaded of the miracles he wrought. Addison.
To SA'UNTER. v. n. [saunter à la sainte terre, from idle people who roved about the country, and asked charity under pretence of going to la sainte terre, to the holy land; or saunter terre, as having no settled home.] To wander about idly; to loiter; to linger.
The cormorant is still sauntering by the sea-side, to see if he can find any of his brais cast up. L'Estrange.
Tell me, why saunter thus from place to place
I meet thee? Dryden's Juvenal.
Though putting the mind upon an unusual stress that may discourage, ought to be avoided; yet this must not run it into a lazy sauntering about ordinary things. Lact.
Yourself look after him, to cure his sauntering at his business. Lact.
If men were weaned from their sauntering humour, wherein they let a good part of their lives run uselessly away, they would acquire skill in hundreds of things. Lact.
So the young squire, when first he comes From country school to Will's or Tom's,
Without one notion of his own,
He saunters wildly up and down. Prior.
The brainless stripling Spells uncouth Latin, and pretends to Greek;
A saunter tribe! such born to wide estates,
With yea and no in senates hold debates. Tickel.
Here saunter 'prentices o'er Otway weep.
Led by my hand, he saunter'd Europe round,
And gather'd ev'ry vice. Dunciad.
SA'VORY. n. f. [savore, French; satureia, Latin.] A plant.
It is of the verticillate kind, with a labiate flower, whose upper lip or crest is divided into two parts; but the lower lip or beard is divided into three parts, the middle part being ere-nated: these flowers are produced from the wings of the leaves in a loose order, and not in whorles or spikes, as are most of this tribe of plants. Miller.
SA'VOIR. n. f. [savoir, French.]
1. A scent; odour.
What savour is better, if phsyck be true,
For places infected, than wormwood and rue? Tyfler.
Benzo calls its smell a tartarous and hellish savour. Albot.

SAW

Turn then my freest reputation to
A savour that may strike the dullest nostril? Shakepeare.
I smell sweet savours, and I feel soft things. Shakef.
That Jews stink naturally, that is, that there is in their race an evil savour, is a received opinion we know not how to admit. Brown's Vulgar Errors.
Truffles, which have an excellent oil, and a volatile salt of a grateful savour, are heating. Arbuthnot on Diet.
2. Taste; power of affecting the palate.
I taste
The savour of death from all things. Milton.
A direct influence from the sun gives fruit a better savour and a greater worth. South.
To SA'VOUR. v. n. [savourer, Fr. from the noun.]
1. To have any particular smell or taste.
2. To betoken; to have an appearance or taste of something.
This rippling of ancestors is very pleasing, and savoury of good conceit and some reading. Spenser on Ireland.
The duke's answers to his speeches are very diligently and civilly couched; and though his heart was big, yet they all savour of an humble spirit. Wotton.
If 'twere a secret that concern'd my life,
This boldness might become thee;
But such unnecessary rudeness savours
Of some design. Denham's Sophy.
I have rejected every thing that savours of party. Addison.
To SA'VOUR. v. a.
1. To like.
Wildom and goodness to the vile seem vile;
Filths savour but themselves. Shakepeare.
2. To exhibit taste of.
Thou savour'st not the things that be of God. Gospel.
That savours only of rancour and pride. Milton.
SA'VOURILY. adv. [from savour.]
1. With gust; with appetite.
The collation he fell to very savourily. L'Estrange's Fables.
This mutin is some English renegade, he talks so savourily of roasting. Dryd. Don Sebastian.
2. With a pleasing relish.
There's a dearth of wit in this dull town,
When filly plays so savourily go down. Dryden.
SA'VOURINESS. n. f. [from savoury.]
1. Taste pleasing and piquant.
2. Pleasing smell.
SA'VOURY. adj. [savoureux, Fr. from savor.]
1. Pleasing to the smell.
The pleasant savoury smell
So quicken'd appetite, that I Could not but taste! Milton's Paradise Lost.
From the boughs a savoury odour blown,
Grateful to appetite, more pleas'd my sense
Than smell of sweetest fennel, or the teats
Of ewe, or goat, dropping with milk at ev'n. Milton.
2. Piquant to the taste.
Savoury meat, such as my father loveth. Gen.
The savoury pulp they chew. Gen.
SA'VOY. n. f. [brassica sabaudica, Latin.] A sort of colwort.
SA'USAGE. n. f. [sauces, French; salsum, Latin.] A roll or ball made commonly of pork or veal, and sometimes of beef, minced very small, with salt and spice; sometimes it is stuffed into the guts of fowls, and sometimes only rolled in flower.
SAW. The preterite of see.
I never saw 'till now Sight more detestable. Milton.
SAW. n. f. [saw, Danish; raga, or rize, Saxon; scis, Fr.]
1. A dentated instrument, by the attrition of which wood or metal is cut.
The teeth are filed to an angle, pointing towards the end of the saw, and not towards the handle of the saw, or straight between the handle and end; because the saw is designed to act only in its progress forwards, a man having in that more strength than he can have in drawing back his saw, and therefore when he draws it back, he bears it lightly off the unfaun stuff, which enables him the longer to continue his several progressions of the saw. Moxon's Mech. Exer.
The roach is a leather-mouth'd fish, and has saw like teeth in his throat. Wolton's Angler.
Then saws were tooth'd, and sounding axes made. Dryd.
If they cannot cut,
His saws are toothless, and his hatchets lead. Pope.
2. [Saxa, Sax. saghe, Dut.] A saying; a sentence; a proverb.
Good kings, that must approve the common saw:
Thou out of heaven's benediction com'st
To the warm sun! Shakepeare's King Lear.
From the table of my memory
I'll wipe away all saws of books. Shakef. Hamlet.
His weapons, holy saws of sacred writ;
His study in his tilt-yard. Shakef. Henry VI.
Strict age and four severity,
With their grave saws in slumber lie. Milton.
To SAW. part. sawed and sawn. [scier, French; from the noun.]
To cut timber or other matter with a saw.
They were felled, they were sawn afunder. Heb. xi. 37.

SAY

A carpenter, after he hath sawn down a tree, and wrought it handomely, sets it in a wall. Wisd. xlii. 11.
It is an incalcency, from a swift motion, such as that of running, threshing, or sawing. Ray on the Creation.
If I cut my finger, I shall as certainly feel pain as if my soul was co-extended with the limb, and had a piece of it sawn through. Calter.
Master-workmen, when they direct any of their underlings to saw a piece of stuff, have several phrases for the sawing of it: they seldom say, saw the piece of stuff; but, draw the saw through it; give the piece of stuff a kerf. Moxon.
It is the carpenters work to hew the timber, saw it out, and frame it. Mortimer.
SA'WDUST. n. f. [saw and dust.] Dust made by the attrition of the saw.
If the membrane be fouled by the sawdust of the bone, wipe it off with a sponge. Wise man's Surgery.
Rotten sawdust, mixed with earth, enriches it very much.
Mortimer's Husbandry.
SA'WFISH. n. f. [saw and fish.] A sort of fish. Asiatick.
SA'WPIT. n. f. [saw and pit.] Pit over which timber is laid to be sawn by two men.
Let them from forth a sawpit rush at once
With some diffused song. Shakef. Merry Wives of Windsor.
They colour it by laying it in a sawpit that hath oak saw- dust therein. Mortimer's Husbandry.
SAW-WORT. n. f. [serratula, Latin.] A plant.
It hath a stoculous flower, consisting of several florets divided into many parts, resting on the embryo, and contained in a scaly empalement, like the greater centaury, from which this differs in having smaller heads, and from the knapweed in having the borders of the leaves cut into small sharp segments, resembling the teeth of a saw. Miller.
SAW-WREST. n. f. [saw and wrest.] A sort of tool.
With the saw-wrest they set the teeth of the saw; that is, they put one of the notches of the wrest between the first two teeth on the blade of the saw, and then turn the handle horizontally a little about upon the notch towards the end of the saw; and that at once turns the first tooth somewhat towards you, and the second tooth from you. Moxon's Mech. Exer.
SA'WER. n. f. [scieur, French; from saw.] One whose trade SA'WYER. } is to saw timber into boards or beams.
The pit-saw is used by joiners, when what they have to do may be as soon done at home as send it to the sawyers. Moxon.
SA'XIFRAGE. n. f. [saxifraga, Fr. saxifraga, Lat.] A plant.
The flower consists of several leaves placed orbicularly, which expand in form of a rose, out of whose multifid flower-cup rises the pointal, which commonly ends in two horns, and afterward turns, together with the flower-cup, into a roundish fruit, which has likewise two horns and two cells, which are full of small seeds. Miller.
Saxifrage, quasi saxum frangere, to break the stone, is applicable to any thing having this property; but is a term most commonly given to a plant, from an opinion of its medicinal virtues to this effect. Quincy.
SA'XIFRAGE Meadow. n. f. [silamum, Latin.] A plant.
It hath a rose and unbellated flower, consisting of several leaves placed circularly, and resting upon the empalement, which afterward becomes a fruit composed of two short channelled seeds.
SA'XIFRAGOUS. adj. [saxum and frago, Latin.] Dissolvent of the stone.
Because goat's blood was found an excellent medicine for the stone, it might be conceived to be able to break a diamond; and so it came to be ordered that the goats should be fed on saxi- fragous herbs, and such as are conceived of power to break the stone. Brown's Vulgar Errors.
To SAY. v. a. preter. said. [recgan, Saxon; seggen, Dutch.]
1. To speak; to utter in words; to tell.
Say it out, Diggon, for whatever it might;
For nought but well mought him betight,
He is so meek. Spenser.
In this slumbry agitation what have you heard her say? Shak.
Speak unto Solomon; for he will not say thee nay. 1 Kings.
2. To allege.
After all can be said against a thing, this will still be true, that many things possibly are, which we know not of. Tillot.
In vain shall we attempt to justify ourselves, as the rich young man in the gospel did, by appealing to the great duties of the law; unless we can say somewhat more, even that we have been liberal in our distributions to the poor. Atterbury.
3. To tell in any manner.
With flying speed, and seeming great pretence,
Came messenger with letters which his message said. F. 24.
To SAY. v. n.
1. To speak; to pronounce; to utter.
He said moreover, I have somewhat to say unto thee; and the said, say on. 1 Kings ii. 14.
Say nothing to any man, but go thy way. Mar. i. 44.
To the others he said, go ye after him. Exek. ix. 5.
The council-table and star-chamber hold, as Thucydides said of the Athenians, for honourable that which pleased, and for just that which profited. Clarendon.
